Some deserts have sand, others have rocks or mountains. There are also deserts with ice and snow. In sandy deserts, the wind makes sand dunes. They can look like mountains.

It is usually very dry in the desert, but plants and animals need water. Some plants, like a cactus, keep water in their stems.

Desert animals don't drink a lot. Camels sometimes don't drink water for a week. This is why people travel on camels in the desert.

The Seasons

In lots of countries, there are four seasons in a year: spring, summer, fall, and winter.

In spring, it gets warmer and it rains. This helps plants to grow. Summer comes after spring. It's hot. Fruit and flowers grow. Then, it's fall. It gets colder. Leaves turn red and orange and fall to the ground.

Winter comes after fall. It's usually colder than the other seasons, and it snows sometimes. Lots of trees don't have leaves in winter.
